Update for September 2021

Greetings to the MAHB Community,

You spoke, and we listened. Instead of sending out weekly emails for updates and blog announcements, we will now be mailing updates just once per month to save our inboxes from information overload.

Check out the latest information on what's happening, this month's blogs, websites worth visiting, and new books.

Conversations

What opens up when we remember who we are, accept the inevitable, honor our grief, and prioritize what is pro-future and soul-nourishing? What lies beyond? Michael Dowd invites 75 guests - including Paul Ehrlich, Joanna Macy, Derrick Jensen, William Rees, and Richard Heinberg - to share their personal journeys along this trajectory and especially the gifts they have found on the other side of the postdoom doorway.

Visions for a Post-Covid World - Defining a Radically New Normal. With contributions from MAHB authors Sibylle Frey, Max Winpenny, and Brittany

Ganguly.

"Beyond precipitating illness and death in a great many people across the globe, the Covid-19 pandemic has had a diverse range of further impacts. Among these, it has revealed that rapid large-scale change in the behaviour of societies is possible, it has led to inspiring stories of human endeavour (and dispiriting stories of human greed), and it has offered a stark warning as to the fragility of current economies. In addition, the pandemic has provided a desperately needed opportunity for reflection on humanity's present trajectory, a course that is destroying the life-support systems on which we—and the innumerable species with whom we share the Earth—depend.

In this collection of new writing, a number of the world's most exciting environmental thinkers provide their visions for what a radically new normal could look like in a post-Covid world. Between them, they shine a light on a spectrum of key topics, including economics, energy, food systems, education, climate, rewilding, animal rights, and communication". - goodreads.com
